

Contents

Illustrations	viii
The contributors	ix
Preface	xiii
Part 1 On the home front
1. 'Light in the darkness': Elizabeth McKenzie Hatton John Maynard	3
2. 'The mother of the home': Jennie Parsons Smith Christine Brett Vickers	28
3. 'A devotion I hope I may fully repay': Joan Kingsley-Strack Victoria Haskins	57
Part 2 Shared struggle
4. 'Same bodies, different skin': Ruth Heathcock Karen Hughes	83
5. 'Never forgotten': Pearl Gibbs (Gambanyi) Stephanie Gilbert	107
Part 3 Public lives
6. 'Whatever her race, a woman is not a chattel': Mary Montgomery Bennett Alison Holland	129

7. 'Would have known it by the smell of it': Ella Hiscocks Anna Cole	153
8. 'For a brighter day': Constance Ternent Cooke Fiona Paisley	172
Part 4 'Knowing' the Aborigines
9. 'Bye and bye when all the natives have gone': Daisy Bates and Billinge Cynthia Coyne	199
10. 'A glorious thing is to live in a tent in the infinite': Daisy Bates Jim Anderson	217
11. 'I drew very close to these men, sharing their dilemma...': Elizabeth Durack Franchesca Cubillo	232
12. 'To put on record, as faithfully as possible': Catherine Martin Margaret Allen	241
References	257
Index	272